“ Aunt Lynn, long before I heard your voice, I learned much about you from my Father. Your reputation proceeded you. As her older brother, he was always proud of you and pointed you out as an example of what can be done in life despite all odds. No one helped you with your education and yet you excelled in multiple disciplines. You chose a field that women of your time often shied away from. You pushed aside all restrictions by simply being consistently right about nearly everything! Being analytical and truthful were core characteristics that gave you great confidence in knowing between right and wrong. These are the hallmarks of a true leader. At the same time, your interest in keeping your relatives within reach for their own good tells another story that you may not have often said in words. You were always on our side. In fact, you were one of our champions. I will miss the talks we had on the phone, family, careers, politics, and all. My world is a little emptier without you Aunt Lynn. Godspeed from your nephew Greg.

“ Truly a sad day as the last of the four Frank Wnuck Sr. siblings has left us. They were the first Wnuck families to be born and raise their families in America. Lynn was a woman of enormous intellect coupled with a sarcastic wit that was devoid of BS. Never at a loss for words she lived a life of honesty and class. Be well my dear Aunt Evelyn. It was women like you who set the stage for generations of successful women with minds of their own. Your nephew, Erik Wnuck

“ What can I say about my Aunt Lynn. She was a women that even if you didn't agree with her you had to listen and admire her. She didn't just go by hearsay. She made sure she knew the facts about everything she did or discussed. As a child I remember bragging about my Aunt in school. She was a and still is the only women I have ever met that was truly her own person. If she ever had fear she never showed it and never let it stop her. Aunt Lynn, you have left your mark on me and this world. I only wish I had been able to spend more time with you. I will miss the letters you would add every year to your Christmas card. RIP and I am sure you are with your brothers watching over us down here. Vicki Lynn Wnuck Pearl
